BUAN6340 - Programming for Data Science

This course covers many aspects of programming for data science and analytics, including syntax, handling data, data visualization, and implementation of statistical analysis models. The course will be taught using Python language and may use a different programming language as applicable. Prerequisites: BUAN 6356 or MIS 6323. (3-0) Y