ATCM4325 - Race, Technology, and Media

ATCM 4325 Race, Technology, and Media (3 semester credit hours) In this course, students learn about media and technology's inscription within the histories of Western racism and colonialism; how structural racism affects technology development, the media industries, and media representations; and how race is articulated in media and technology, including in film, television, social media, and videogames. Prerequisite: ATCM 3321 or instructor consent required. (3-0) T