Developmental Reading

DRDG D292 Developmental Reading (2 semester credit hours) A reading course that offers students the opportunity to develop proficiency in reading comprehension, vocabulary development, critical reasoning, study skills, and other reading skills necessary for success in academic and career advancement. The course emphasizes learning how to learn and includes reading/learning experiences designed to strengthen the total educational background of each student. May be repeated (6 semester credit hours maximum). This developmental course cannot be used for degree credit. (1-1) S